University of Southern California

In my opinion, teaching is a very rewarding experience and an important part of an academic career. I have been a TA for both introductory and intermediary classes in economics at the University of California, Irvine. I attended Ph.D. classes there for a year before transferring to the University of Southern California.

I am mostly interested in and prepared to teach the following courses:

- Introductory microeconomics/ macroeconomics (undergraduate)
- Intermediate microeconomics/ macroeconomics (undergraduate)
- Applied microeconomics (undergraduate, graduate)
- Labor economics (undergraduate, graduate)
- Global economy (undergraduate, graduate)
- Economics of happiness (undergraduate, graduate)
- Development economics (undergraduate, graduate)

In addition to the courses listed above, I am open to the opportunity to develop and teach other courses at the undergraduate and/or the graduate level.
